TradingView Recommends

An hourly VIP report: the coins TradingView's own technical rating currently ranks strongest, for several chart periods.

October 2026

TradingView publishes a technical rating for every coin, built from its own set of oscillators and moving averages. Once an hour HafizeBot reads that rating for the whole market, sorts the coins from strongest to weakest for each chart period it tracks, and posts the top of the list to the VIP channel.

strongest to weakest by TradingView's aggregated rating — schematic, not live data

How to read it

- Each block of the message is one chart period; the coins listed are the strongest for that period at the moment the report ran.
- A coin appearing in more than one block is rated strongly across periods; a coin in only the shortest one may be a brief move.

What it is not

- It is not an element signal: it carries no entry, target or strength, and the autotrader never acts on it.
- It says nothing about HafizeBot's model, which is a separate system scoring coins across 240+ indicators, formulas and components.
- It is not a recommendation to buy. Use it as a shortlist to look at, together with your own plan.

Shared in the VIP channel. Questions: @Hafizebotadmin on Telegram or hello@hafizebot.com.

RISK DISCLOSURE

Cryptocurrency futures trading carries a high risk of loss and is not suitable for every investor. Signals and autotrading are tools, not financial advice. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Never trade with money you cannot afford to lose.